

Transitioning Treasure June 2007 Newsletter Article

If you are against the idea of leaving your long time home, or still “sitting on a fence” about whether to stay or move, let me give you my perspective on this. Although I read and hear over and over again about the value of “aging in place” (remaining in your family home as you age), I just don’t buy it. Just as we change throughout our lives, our lifestyle and housing needs also change.

If you’re like most people, you’ve lived in several different places over the course of your life. All of these living situations fit you and your lifestyle at the time. Just think what your life would be like today if you had never moved from the first home where you lived after you were born. Think of all the people you would never have met and the life experiences you would have missed!